Bryan's Unspoken Speech Made Public After Death

Sudden Ending of Scopes Trial Prevented Its Delivery at the Time for Which It Was Prepared—Bryan Disappointed Because It Remained Undelivered—Widow Releases It for Publication.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dayton, Tenn., July 28.—Even in death, the great voice of William Jennings Bryan spoke out today against the "bloody, brutal" doctrine of evolution, and in impassioned defense of the principles of Christian faith for which he laid down his life.

The Commoner's last words were spoken through the medium of the speech he was to have delivered in summing up the side of religion in the Scopes trial. He had spent days preparing this speech, he had intended it should rival in eloquence the beauty that other speech of the "Crown of Thorns and Cross of Gold" on which he, a young lawyer, had climbed from political obscurity to lofty political heights three decades ago.

It was a disappointment to Bryan that he was denied the opportunity of delivering this oration before the jury of farmer-folk in the Rhea county court house.

Mrs. Bryan decided it should go before the country while the body of the Commoner lay in simple state on the Rogers lawn, viewed by the "plain people" for whom the speech was intended.

Mr. Bryan's Argument.

It follows, in part:

"Let us separate the issues from the misrepretations, intentional or unintentional, that have obscured both the letter and the purpose of this law (the evolution law).

"This is not an interference with freedom of conscience. A teacher can think as he pleases and worship God as he likes, or refuse to worship God at all. He can believe in the Bible or discard it, he can accept Christ or reject Him. This law places no obligations or restraints upon him. And so with freedom of speech; he can, so long as he acts as an individual, say anything he likes on any subject. This law does not violate any rights guaranteed by the Constitution to any individual. It deals with the defendant, an employe, an official or public servant, paid by the state and, therefore, under instructions from the state.

"The state had a right to pass this law, and the law represents the determination of the parents to guard the religious welfare of their children. It need hardly be added that this law did not have its origin in bigotry. It is not trying to protect itself from the effort of an indolent minority to force a religion upon children under the guise of teaching science.

"What right has a little, irresponsible oligarchy of self-styled intellectuals to demand control of the schools of the United States, in which 25,000,000 children are being educated at an annual expense of $2,000,000,000?

"Christians must, in every state in the Union, build their own colleges in which to teach Christianity; it is only simple justice that atheism, agnostics and unbelievers should build their own colleges if they want to teach their own religious views or attack the religious views of others."

Here, Bryan described the law in detail, and reviewed the evidence submitted in the Scopes trial. He continued:

Christianity Not Hostile to Learning.

"Religion is not hostile to learning; Christianity has been the greatest patron saint learning has ever had. But Christians know that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom now just as it has been in the past, and they therefore oppose the teaching of guesses that encourage Godlessness among students.

"Neither does Tennessee undervalue the service rendered by science. The Christian men and women of Tennessee know how deeply mankind is indebted to science for the benefits conferred by the discovery of the laws of nature and by the designing of machinery for the utilization of these laws. Give science a fact and it is not only invincible, but it is of incalculable service to men.

"Christianity welcomes truth from whatever source it comes, and is not afraid that any real truth from any source can interfere with the divine truth that comes by inspiration from God himself. It is not scientific truth to which Christians object for true science is classified knowledge and nothing therefore can be scientific unless it is true.

Evolution Not Proven.

"Evolution is not truth, it is merely an hypothesis—it is millions of guesses strung together. It has not been proven in the days of Darwin he expressed astonishment that with two or three million species it had been impossible to trace any species to any other species. It had not been proven in the days of Huxley, and it has not been proven up to today.

"Darwin suggested two laws, sexual selection and natural selection. Sexual selection has been laughed out of the class room, and natural selection is being abandoned and now legislation is satisfactory even to scientists. Some of the more rash advocates of evolution are wont to say that evolution is as firmly established as the Copernician theory. The absurdity of such a claim is apparent when we remember that any one can prove the law of gravitation by throwing a weight into the air and that any one can prove the roundness of the world by going around it, while no one can prove evolution to be true in any way whatever.

Resemblances Not Proof.

"There is no more reason to believe that man descended from some inferior animal than there is to believe that a stately mansion has descended from a small cottage. Resemblances are not proof—they simply put us on inquiry.

"But while the wisest scientists cannot prove a pushing power, such as evolution is supposed to be, there is a lifting power that any child can understand. The plant lifts the mineral up into a higher world still higher. So, it has been reasoned by analogy, man rises not by a power within him, but only when drawn upward by a higher power. There is a spiritual gravitation that draws all souls toward Heaven just as surely as there is a physical force that draws all matter on the surface of the earth toward the earth's centre.

"The evolutionist does not undertake to tell us how protozoa, moved by interior and resident forces, sent life up through all the various species, and cannot prove that there was actually any such compelling power at all. And yet, school children are asked to accept their guesses and build a philosophy of life upon them.

The Doubts of Evolution.

"It is not a laughing matter when one considers that evolution not only offers no suggestions as to a creator but tends to doubt the creation itself. And while it is shaking faith in God as a beginning, it is also creating doubt as to Heaven at the end of life. Evolutionists do not feel that it is incumbent upon them to show how life began or at what point in their long drawn out scheme of changing species man became endowed with hope and promise of immortal life.

"We have reason to demand something more than guesses. 'We may well suppose' is not a sufficient substitute for 'thus saith the Lord'.

Indictments Against Evolution.

"Our first indictment against evolution is that it disputes the truth of the Bible account of man's creation and shakes faith in the Bible as the word of God. This indictment we prove by comparing the processes described as evolutionary with the text of Genesis. It not only contradicts the Mosaic record as to the beginning of human life, but it disputes the Bible doctrine of reproduction according to kind—the greatest scientific principle known.

"Our second indictment is that the evolutionary hypothesis, carried to its logical conclusion, disputes every vital truth of the Bible. Its tendency, natural if not inevitable, is to lead those who really accept it, first to agnosticism and then to atheism. Evolutionists attack the truth of the Bible, not openly at first, but by using weasel-words like 'poetical,' 'symbolical' and 'allegorical' to suck the meaning out of the inspired record of man's creation.

"How can any teacher tell his student that evolution does not tend to destroy his religious faith? How can an honest teacher conceal from his students the effect of evolution upon Darwin himself? And is it not stranger still that preachers who advocate evolution never speak of Darwin's loss of faith, due to his belief in evolution?

What Tennessee Parents Fear.

"The parents of Tennessee have reason enough to fear the effect of evolution on the minds of their children. Belief in evolution cannot bring to those who hold such a belief any compensation for the loss of faith in God, trust in the Bible, and belief in the super-natural character of Christ. It is belief in evolution that has caused so many scientists and so many Christians to reject the miracles of the Bible, and then give up, one after another, every virtual trust of Christianity. They finally cease to pray and sunder the tie that binds them to their Heavenly Father.

The Matter of Miracles.

"The miracles should not be a stumbling block to any one. They raise but three questions:

"First, could God perform a miracle? Yes. The God who created the universe can do anything He wants to with it. He can temporarily suspend any law that He has made or He may employ any law that we do not understand.

"Second, would God perform a miracle? To answer that question in the negative one would have to know more about God's plans and

Coolidge to Call New Conference

Proposed Security Pact Now Under Consideration by European Nations May Be Basis for Further Limitation of Armament.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Swampscott, Mass., July 28.—A new world conference looking to further disarmament, will be called by the government of the United States immediately following the perfection by the nations of Europe of the pending security pact, should the latter prove possible.

Definite indication to this effect was given today at the summer White House here by an official spokesman for President Coolidge.

President Coolidge frankly is anxious to see the nations of Europe enter into the security agreement which they are now discussing. It is his opinion that the proposed pact would lay a very broad basis for further limitation of armament and he also thinks it would stabilize conditions generally in Europe to the point for which he has been waiting before undertaking a second arms conference.

President Coolidge, it was stated in his behalf, realizes there can never exist in Europe what might be called a perfect condition for the discussion of disarmament. He merely has been waiting for a time when Europe was more nearly returned to a pre-war basis so as to give his conference the largest promise of success.

First, it was the drafting of the Dawes plan which caused the president to hold his call in abeyance. Then he was delayed again while that plan was put into operation. Next followed the Geneva conference with its discussion of arms traffic and opium control.

Both the Dawes plan and the agreements brought of the Geneva conference have gone far toward the stabilization of Europe, in the opinion of the president, and he is now waiting only for the various nations to reach a security accord before summoning them to Washington to discuss further reduction of their navies and their armies forces.

Think Flaw May Save Home Rule

The New York State Home Rule Commission announced Monday discovery of a legislative flaw which, in the opinion of the commissioners, restores the Home Rule amendment to validity despite the recent decision of the appellate division of the Supreme Court that the legislation was void. Says the New York Times.

The appellate division overturned the Home Rule amendment chiefly on the ground that the so-called "Clerk's amendment" to Section 2, Article XII. of the Constitution, involving a change of phraseology, nullified the act of the legislature in 1922 in passing and submitting to the people for ratification the Home Rule amendment.

The commission in a statement yesterday declared that the "Clerk's amendment" was itself null and void at the time it was cited to upset the Home Rule legislation. The supposed flaw, which is said to nullify the act and which was discovered by the commission, lies in the section of the Constitution requiring that a proposal to amend the Constitution must be referred to the legislature "to be chosen at the next general election of Senators."

They pointed out that the "Clerk's amendment" was proposed during the legislative session of 1920. It was adopted. The next legislature, that of 1921, met the statutory requirement for newly elected Senators. But, declared the Commissioners, the "Clerk's amendment" was passed over at that session without any vote of agreement, as required. In the legislature of 1922 it was brought up, adopted and submitted to the people for ratification.

Ruben Pays $50 Under Protest

Philip Ruben of Newark, N. J., arrested Sunday afternoon near Marlborough by a State Trooper on a charge of leaving the scene of an automobile accident at Coxsackie, being apprehended after a chase, was arraigned before Judge N. A. Hawkins at Coxsackie Monday afternoon. Ruben had given bail for his appearance and secured Henry Klein of this city as his attorney. When he appeared before Judge Hawkins a further charge of reckless driving was made and after a hearing on both charges the court found him guilty and imposed a fine of $25 in each case. Mr. Ruben paid the $50 under protest and gave notice he would appeal from the judgment as there was no evidence given that his car was closer than eight inches from the car of the complaining witness whose car went into a ditch and hit a pole. It was alleged that the Ruben car had crowded the car that was wrecked off the highway.

Sympathy Wasted On Criminals

Should Be Devoted to Protection of Law-Abiding Citizens, Says Official of Napanoch Institution.

John L. Hoffmann, assistant superintendent of the Institution for Defecive Delinquents at Napanoch, writing to the New York Herald-Tribune under date of July 22, calls attention to "the modern coddling of inmates" of penal institutions and "the misguided sympathetic efforts of self-constituted reformers," which he believes should be brought to a halt.

Mr. Hoffmann writes as follows:

Hardly a day passes that we do not read of atrocious murders being committed. A few days ago the brutal shooting down of street car employes, for the purpose of robbery, was met with condemnation by all law-abiding citizens.

On the same day that the above occurred I noted in the public press that a committee of prominent citizens had been formed for the purpose of influencing the New York State Legislature to abolish capital punishment.

I am not going to argue pro nor con as to the merits of capital punishment. However, I do know, from twenty-three years of experience in handling various types of criminals, that imprisonment does not deter habitual criminals from committing crime after crime, and that they do fear the electric chair.

Why should we let the brutal murderers who shot down those defenceless men live the life of ease in some penitentiary while the families, wives and children of those they have blotted out are forced to struggle on the best they can?

The modern coddling of inmates and the misguided sympathetic efforts of self-constituted reformers should be brought to a halt. The interference with the vigorous enforcement of law has destroyed the fear of punishment of criminals to the extent that it is no longer a deterrent to the further commission of crime to be incarcerated in our penal institutions.

If one-half of the energy spent in sympathizing with murderers and criminals were devoted to the protection of law-abiding citizens and bringing to justice the parasites and butcherers who blotted out the lives of the Westchester unfortunates this country would be a safe place to live in.

In conclusion, I wish to warn all judges, district attorneys, legislators and citizens to be on your guard and do not allow any further breaking down of the criminal laws.

War on New York Minor Violators

Federal Government to Ignore Small Infractions of Dry Law Only in States Which Prosecute Offenders—Club Lockers May Escape.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 28.—Hip flask toters, private clubs suspected of maintaining liquor in lockers, home brewers and other small violators of the prohibition act will come in for scant attention from the Federal government under the revamped enforcement system.

Treasury officials declared today that responsibility for checking minor infractions of the law must be taken over by the state and municipal authorities.

New York, Maryland and Nevada, the three states which do not have state prohibition laws, alone are exempted from this policy. Prosecutions in these states must continue in the Federal courts, although officials anticipate the early passage of a dry law in Nevada.

When it is necessary because of a collapse of local enforcement agencies for the Federal government to step in, the extensive employment of the padlock injunction will be the chief weapon against offenders. Clubs, hotels, road houses and other pleasure resorts may be controlled by this agency.

By holding the new enforcement machine in reserve for attacking large conspiracy and smuggling cases and to eliminating sources of the supply, much lost time occasioned by the presence of agents in courts to prosecute trivial actions will be saved, officials said.

Numerous complaints have been received by the treasury department against the use of private club lockers for storing liquor. While this is an offense against the Volstead act, the Federal government will not maintain sufficient forces under the reorganization to make the thousands for aids necessary to break up the practice. Except in aggravated cases complaints will be referred to the local authorities.

Mrs. La Follette Not a Candidate

Wisconsin Senator's Widow Not to Seek Husband's Seat—Warns Progressives to be Harmonious—Son May Become Candidate.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madison, Wis., July 28.—From the seclusion of her Maple Bluff farm, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette announced today that she would not become a candidate for the senate seat made vacant by the death of her husband, Senator La Follette.

Her refusal to make the race was taken by close friends of the family here as definite indication that her oldest son, Robert M. La Follette, Jr., shortly will announce himself as a candidate for the unexpired term that runs until 1928.

The exacting demands, the ceaseless strain and the responsibilities of political leadership make a public career distasteful to her, Mrs. La Follette said, in response to numerous appeals from women all over the country that she run.

"I realize that my election might pave the way for other women to be elected to the senate," she said, "and I am deeply mindful of the importance of women sharing the responsibilities of high offices and of having direct voice in shaping a government of the people.

"After giving careful thought to the special obligations which circumstances place upon me, I cannot however, bring myself to believe that it is my duty to enter the field."

Mrs. La Follette sounded a warning to progressives to unite harmoniously and steadfastly in furthering the work to which the senator gave his life.

"This is a critical time in the history of the progressive movement," declared Mrs. La Follette. "Progressives in the senate are few in number but they are vested with great responsibility and power. I need not suggest how vitally the choice of Mr. La Follette's successor may affect the cause."

Giant Zeppelin to Seek North Pole

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, July 28—Popular subscriptions of German patriots will send a specially constructed Zeppelin to seek the North Pole via the air, it was announced today. The polar cruiser would be of 105,000 cubic metres capacity.

The campaign for funds will be launched by the Zeppelin company August 20 at Friedrichshafen, when the big celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first Zeppelin flight takes place.

SPAIN GREETS PETAIN WITH HIGH HONORS.

Laugh in Court Cost Him $10

John Dertso, Arrested by Police to Save His Roll, Discharged With Suspended Sentence Which Caused Him to Laugh Once, but Not Twice.

John Dertso will be very careful in the future where he laughs for it cost him $10 to indulge in a laugh in police court this morning. John was found helplessly drunk downtown at 2:30 o'clock by Officer Brophy. He had considerable money with him and was locked up in jail more to prevent his being "rolled" by some one than because he was making a nuisance of himself.

John evidently did not appreciate the fact, for when Judge Harry E. Schirick later in police court gave him a suspended sentence he emitted a hearty laugh as he was walking from the court room.

"Come back here," observed Judge Schirick pleasantly.

John turned with a smile and walked back to the bar of justice, where the smile was speedily wiped from his face when Judge Schirick informed him he was fined $10 for contempt of court.

John paid his fine but was very careful not to laugh again, at least while in the city hall.

Arrested for Intoxication.

Officer Aley Monday evening arrested Henry Bush and James Schryver on a charge o fpublic intoxication on Wall street. This morning Henry gave cash bail for his appearance on Thursday in police court, while Schryver was fined $5 and payment of the fine suspended provided he returned to Hurley where he is working and remain out of Kingston.

McGurn Must Support Wife.

Thomas McGurn of No. 11 Mill street, who was arrested by his wife, was sentenced to six months in the Albany penitentiary and fined $50, but sentence was suspended provided he agreed to pay his wife $10 weekly toward the suport of their two children and remain away from his family, to which he agreed.

Ferguson Withdrew Charge.

Daniel Ferguson of Clifton avenue withdrew the charge of reckless driving that he had preferred against Michael Byarakis, proprietor of the Popular Lunch on the Strand, and Michael was discharged. The arrest followed a collision between the two automobiles at the Central postoffice in which two passengers with Michael were slightly injured and the city safety zone was demolished.

Fined $15 for Speeding.

Held For Grand Jury.

Mrs. Mary Sherry, a negress, waived examination and was held under $600 bail to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house on Chambers street. Several of the inmates who were captured in the raid on the place were recently sent to the Albany penitentiary by Judge Schirick.

TWO WOMEN WERE INJURED IN AUTO UPSET AT MILTON

Mrs. Hrepsime Agotian, 70 years old, of New York city sustained a fractured arm and severe lacerations in an automobile accident in Milton Sunday evening, when a car in which she was riding was overturned. Her granddaughter, Miss Armine Moroukin, who was with her in the car, sustained bruises. Both were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where they were treated.

The accident took place on the hill opposite the Catholic Church in Milton and is said to have been due to the sudden application of the brakes. The machine skidded on the wet concrete pavement and upset. The injured women were summer guests at the home of Mrs. Schraw of Marlborough. Dr. Donovan is attending them.

EGNOR ENTERS THE RESTAURANT BUSINESS

The large room in the Lister Garage, Fair street, that was used as a show room for Cadillac automobiles by the Lister Garage, Ltd., has been leased by Leslie Egnor who has for some time been the sales manager for the garage owners. Mr. Egnor has resigned his position and will embark in the restaurant business, the room being in the process of making into an up-to-date restaurant.

Still Waging War Against Bugs on Manor Avenue

Spraying Bugs With Gasoline on the City Dump—Will Send Some Dead Bugs Away to Ascertain What Breed They Are—May Burn Out Dump.

The offensive inaugurated against the million or more bugs, which some folks say are "cockroaches" and which Dr. Daniel Connelly, city health officer, classifies as "brown beetles," was still in full force today and men were busy spraying the North Manor avenue dump with gasoline. The old tree sprayer is being used with good effect. It kills whatever bug the spray hits, but does not penetrate down to the nests of eggs in the dump.

It is thought that the only way to reach the nest eggs is to thoroughly saturate the city dump and then apply a lighted match. This is what is being planned, but this morning the offensive against the bug army was being carried on by the tree sprayer.

Superintendent W. Scott Van Keuren placed several of the bugs in a bottle this morning to send them away and ascertain just what kind of a bug it is that is infesting the neighborhood. It is believed that when the bug had been identified the authorities will be in a better position to wage the war as they will know the kind of insect they are dealing with and what it eats.

For over a month the houses and garages in the vicinity of the North Manor avenue dump have been invaded by these "cockroaches" or "brown beetles." They swarm into the garages in such numbers that when the doors are opened they fly out into the open air by the thousands, making a peculiar buzzing noise that sounds like a hive of bees that have been disturbed.

Not only do they infest the garages but they also crawl into the houses through windows and doors and make nuisances of themselves. They also infest the grounds and crawl under piles of stones, old boards or lumber that may be in the yards.

As far as known this is the first invasion of this kind of "bug" in Kingston. The authorities believe they are not cockroaches because they are able to fly, and a cockroach is not built for flying purposes.

ALASKA, LIKE AMERICA, PLANS BETTER HOMES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 28.—Alaska, to many, may bring to mind fur-clad men and women running in and out of snow igloos, chewing seal blubber, fishing through the ice and dashing over the snow and ice with dog-teams These things happen, but it is not a true picture of Alaska.

So progressive and up-to-date is this far northern province of the United States that Valdez, Alaska, took part in Better Homes Week, which occurred during May. A Valdez Better Homes Committee was formed, headed by Mrs. S. O. Casler, and during the week arranged for a number of discussions, based on the literature furnished by Better Homes in America, the Valdez clubs and its local Parent-Teacher Association taking prominent part.

Close to nineteen hundred Better Homes Committees in as many communities in the United States took part in the education work during Better Homes Week, under the direction of Secretary Hoover, president of Better Homes in America, and James Ford, is executive director. Valdez holds the distinction among these communities of being the frontier committee—"farthest north."

CHARGES INEFFICIENCY CAUSES COAL SHORTAGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, O., July 28.—Entirely too much coal is lost due to unsystematic or inefficient mining methods," declares Professor H. E. Noid, of Ohio State University. "For every three tons of coal mined in Ohio, one ton is needlessly lost in the mines."

Professor Noid said that causes of coal losses include:

Leaving large areas of coal in mines troubled with water, because of expensive pumping costs.

Too many rooms driven off butt headings and allowed to stand, inducing "creeps" and allowing roof to cave making recovery costs prohibitive.

Hundreds of small "open bird" mines opened without engineering methods causing thousands of tons of coal by "ground hog" mining methods.

STILL MANY DOGS UNLICENSED IN KINGSTON

There are but a few more days left in which dog owners may obtain licenses for their pets. So far this month City Clerk Styles has issued about 400 dog licenses. There are about 1,400 dogs owned in Kingston as shown by the recent dog census.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GRANDMA

Mrs. Cucumber Green had been four years old for quite a while, she thought, but really it was not so very long. Only so much had happened in that time.

She Had a Little Pail.

There had been so many games, many plans, so much housekeeping.

When Mrs. Cucumber Green did her housework she called herself Jane Eckler. Her family called her Marguret.

"Jane," Mrs. Cucumber Green said, "we must clean house today. Number Four Green Lane looks a sight, a perfect sight."

Mrs. Cucumber Green changed her voice then and answered for Jane:

"Yes, ma'am, that we must surely do. The house does look a sight. What with the children playing so hard, bless their little hearts, and mussing things up so, the dreadful little things, we must put everything to rights."

"Today would be a good time for house-cleaning," Mrs. Cucumber Green said.

"As good as any," Jane Eckler answered.

So Mrs. Cucumber Green put on an apron which she wore when she was "pretending" she was Jane Eckler. She had a little pail and in it was dry water.

Dry water, of course, is water which is not wet. And as Mrs. Cucumber Green's mother was afraid she would catch cold if she used wet water, she always used the dry.

She dipped her rag into the pail and wrung out the "pretend" water.

Then she scrubbed the windows of the doll house and put everything in order.

Of course she had to send the children out to play when she did this, and she put them on a big chair which she drew up beside the chair where Grandma sat.

Grandma always made the children so happy. Sometimes as Mrs. Cucumber Green was being very busy she would hear Grandma talking to the children.

There were some grown-ups who wouldn't do that. They would only speak to your children when you were with them But Grandma could be heard every now and again saying:

"Well, Allie Baa, I hear you went up street with your mother this morning. I hope you got the very best of oranges for us."

Then Grandma's voice would change so as to sound like Allie Baa, and Allie, in Grandma's "pretend" voice would say:

"Yes, Grandma dear, the very best. The man said they were very fine, the finest in town."

Grown-up people came to the house who sometimes would say to Mrs. Cucumber Green's mother:

"How well your mother looks—she doesn't show her age at all."

That seemed so very silly to Mrs. Cucumber Green. Grandma was one of the youngest people in the whole world—and never could Mrs. Cucumber Green quite understand how she happened to be her mother's mother. It could have been the other way around just as easily.

Grandma called her a "little cub" which was a very sweet, affectionate pet name.

And she had pet names for Mrs. Cucumber Green's children, too.

But Mrs. Cucumber Green, or Jane Eckler as she was now "pretending" to be, couldn't listen to the talk now. For Green Lane simply had to be tidied up.

There were the dishes to put in their proper places and the little make-believe lamp which should always be in the best parlor of the doll's house was in the kitchen.

House-cleaning time was a very busy time. But Jane Eckler was a good worker and liked to work, too. Mrs. Cucumber Green was quite satisfied with her.

Grandma Always Made the Children So Happy.

"You're a good girl, Jane," Mrs. Cucumber Green said after the house cleaning was all over.

And Jane Eckler answered (Mrs. Cucumber Green changing her voice for this, of course):

"I'm so glad I please, ma'am."

Then Jane Eckler took off her apron and she was Mrs. Cucumber Green once more.

The children came home from their visit on the sofa by Grandma after telling Grandma what a beautiful time they had had.

Grandma told Mrs. Cucumber Green, too, that her children had behaved so well.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY King William's War—1690-1697. by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

When I am overmatched by petty cares
And things of earth loom large, and look to be
Of moment, how it soothes and comforts me
To step into the night and feel the airs
Of heaven fan my cheek; and, best of all,
Gaze up into those all-uncharted seas
Where swim the stately planets; such as these
Make mortal fret seem slight and temporal.

—Richard Barton.

CHERISHED DISHES

Some time when puzzled for a salad combination, dice a few vegetables and stir them into a lemon jelly, pour into molds and serve when molded on lettuce with a thick mayonnaise.

French Pineapple Cream.—Take one can of pineapple, one cupful of cooked rice, two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, one-fourth of a cupful of water, one-half cupful of sugar, one cupful of whipping cream. Soak the gelatin in the cold water, dissolve in one-half cupful of the pineapple juice which has been heated hot. Add the rice, sugar and one-half can of pineapple. Fold in the cream whipped and line a wet mold with the rings of the remaining pineapple. Pour the pudding into the mold and place in ice and salt to become firm.

Manhattan Pudding.—Blanch, brown and chop two-thirds of a cupful of almonds. Mix one and one-half cupfuls of orange juice, one-fourth cupful of lemon juice; add three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar and mix until thoroughly dissolved. Take one teaspoonful of vanilla, add to a fancy mold which has been well chilled. Whip one pint of heavy cream, add three-fourths of a cupful of powdered sugar, the chopped almonds and pour over the first mixture, filling the mold to the top. Seal with a strip of buttered cheesecloth and pack in ice and salt for four hours.

Sour Cream Pie.—Take one cupful of sour cream, add one-half cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves, a pinch of salt and one-half cupful of raisins chopped fine. Line a pie plate with pastry, fill and cover with a top crust. If desired the top crust may be omitted and the meringue added after the custard is baked. Brown in a slow oven.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, July 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Ira D. Bush entertained pleasantly at their home last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rumsey, Mrs. E. DuBois and daughter, Louise, of Newburgh, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Schultz of West New York, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Stokes, Jr., of Pleasantville, N. Y.

Mrs. John Bordenstein visited Kingston one day the past week.

Mrs. George Metcalf and niece, Mrs. Richard Hoffner, called on Mrs. Ira D. Bush last week, also on Mrs. Don.

Harvey Friedell and daughter, Loella, with friends motored to Ellenville last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hotaling entertained a number of their friends from Kingston the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Castor and daughter, Miss Genevieve, of Poughkeepsie and Mr and Mrs. Frank Terhune of Clintondale motored to Bloomington on Saturday and visited L. C. Terhune until Monday evening, when they returned home.

Mrs. Frank Lahey of New York city came on Friday evening to visit Mrs. M. Warner and mother, Mrs. L. Pangburn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ostrander have had their summer cottage treated to a coat of paint, which certainly makes it look a great deal better. Mr. Donath and helper did the painting.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold their bazaar and picnic on Thursday afternoon, August 6, in the grove adjoining the church. Band music furnished in the evening. Quilts, aprons, rugs and fancy articles will be for sale. Refreshments such as ice cream will also be for sale. If stormy it will be held the next fair evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Every spent the week end with friends in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Sanford Tears of Wallkill has been spending a few days with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Hoffman, and has now returned to her home.

Mrs. Charles Anderson and son, Charles, and daughter, Mary, of New York city, are visiting Mrs. Kerber and her two sons for a short stay.

A. W. Piersall of Brooklyn spent Sunday with her family here.

Mr. and Mrs. Buley of Big Indian, visited her sister, Mrs. Floyd Every, on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Olaf Hansen and daughter, Miss Elizabeth, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending a short time with Mrs. Kerber and sons.

GRAND GORGE.

Grand Gorge, July 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Morris of Ashokan, were callers at the home of Mr. Morris's sister, Mrs. D. Ennist, on Sunday.

C. W. Lewis accompanied District Deputy C. G. Hoomer to Phoenicia to install officers on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brooks and family were visitors over the week-end at the home of Mr. Brooks's parents at Ashokan.

The fair of the Ladies' Social Union connected with the M. E. Church was held on Wednesday. About $400 was realized.

Grand Gorge Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., was instituted on Monday evening. Forty-one members were enrolled as charter members. In addition to the lodge being instituted officers were installed and the degree conferred upon 30 new members. Visiting delegations were present from Davenport Center, Bloomville, Hobart, Roxbury and Arkville. About 200 were in attendance.

Milton Townsend of Kingston was a dinner guest of his friend, Leon Proper last week.

Miss Grace Johnson returned Saturday from a two weeks' outing at Nyack.

Mr. and Mrs. Garwood of Kingston, who are camping at the edge of the village, were pleasant callers of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ennist.

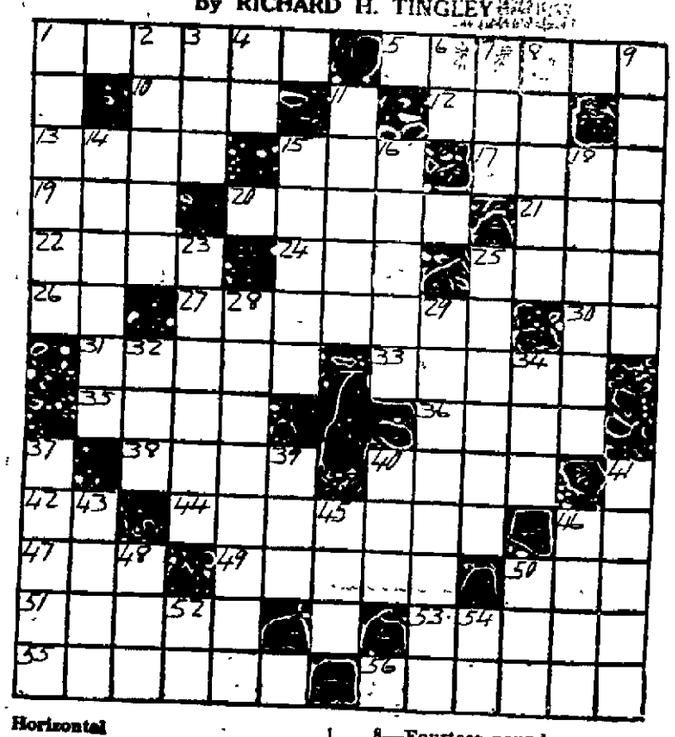

Mrs. William Sturges accompanied her husband on a trip to Oneonta last week.

ZENA.

Zena, July 27.—One of the most lively and sociable gatherings in many years was the opening dance of the Zena Country Club held on Friday evening, July 24, on the grounds of the club house. Crowds from neighboring towns attended and long after midnight streams of cars kept going and coming. Much credit is due the men and boys, who, headed by William Klementis, Sr., labored so strenuously during the week to complete the laying of the floor, arrange the platform, accommodations for cooking and serving refreshments and clear plenty of space for the parking of cars. Hot dogs and rolls, cake, coffee and beverages were all sold out long before the dancing ceased and a nice little sum was added to the treasury. The officers of the Zena Country Club are great hustlers and the members have much to be proud of. The dance was such a wonderful success that a request was made to have another in a week, but considering all the preparations to be made, a compromise was agreed to have another dance on Friday evening, August 7. It was responded to with a rousing cheer. If the enthusiasm continues there will soon be a club house completed that will be an attraction to the entire county.

Ignorant Congo Natives

The natives in the Congo region are firm believers in demons and witches. The number of people annually put to death owing to this horrible superstition is unknown, but it is believed to be very large.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 28, 1925.

AMERICA AND CHINA.

Under the authorization of an act of Congress passed in May of last year the President has directed that the balance of the Boxer indemnity, something over six million dollars, be remitted, thus canceling the last of China's reparation debt after 25 years. Several nations have followed, or announced the intention of following, our example of generosity in this connection, but the United States was the first power to remit any portion of the Boxer indemnity, some ten million dollars being remitted by Congress as far back as 1908. It was part of the agreement that the funds remitted be devoted to education, and we read that the sum remitted in 1908 "brought for the first time a large number of young Chinese into direct contact with the scientific, social and historical background of Western civilization, and so helped pave the way, first, for that revolution of 1911 which made China a republic, and then for that cultural renaissance which, behind all the unrest and civil war in China, is in progress even now."

All this will serve China's best interests ultimately, but we may well believe that great numbers of conservative Chinese wish that we had taken every dollar of the reparation money and left China to educate its sons in its own way. Officially China has expressed gratitude in proper terms, but probably there are many Chinese who share the suspicion of the Japanese that our purposes including missionary work, are not as unselfish and purely benevolent as they appear. It was recently asserted by a supposed authority that "In the eyes of the Japanese we are penetrating China with carefully planned, far-reaching designs, and that our missionaries and schools in that country are consciously sowing the seeds which are to bear fruit in a generation in such a manner as to make America supreme in China.

DAUGHTERS IN THE FIRM.

It seems not yet to have occurred to American campaigners for "equal rights" to demand that firm names in this country should read "John Smith & Daughter" as often as "John Smith & Son," but such a demand has been made in England by Lady Rhondda, the most prominent woman in the British industrial world. Until business men are ready to take daughters into partnership as well as sons, she said, "we shall never get a large number of women into the higher ranks of commerce," adding: "It is sometimes said that a man takes his son in, whether he is suitable or not. I should like to see that principle carried out with the daughters."

This tends to convey the impression that British women, after fighting so much harder than American women to gain the ballot and general "emancipation," are disposed toward continued aggressive action along every line. But probably Lady Rhondda is an exception among her countrywomen. She inherited her father's great coal business and happened to like the exacting work involved in its management. But the average woman in a prosperous English family, like the average woman of the same class in America, is doubtless quite content to leave exacting business affairs to men and interest herself in more agreeable activities, artistic or professional, and especially social.

NATURAL GROWTH.

American farmers have increased the agricultural production of this country nearly one-half in the last twenty-five years despite the fact that there has been practically no increase in the number of farmers in that time. This has been brought about without any radical legislation, such as national ownership of railroads, by industry, initiative and intelligence of the farmers, who have availed themselves of modern methods and improved machinery. The upward trend of farm earning power is shown in statistics recently made public. These show that the value of farm products in 1919 was five times that of 1900. In 1909 total farm products were valued at $4,700,000,000. This figure grew in 1910 to approximately $8,000,000,000. In 1919, the value of farm products was $23,000,000,000. Production fell off from 1919 to 1921, but a steady rise has been noted since that date.

There can be no question that agriculture has kept pace with other industries in the march of progress. Compare the farmer's mode of living today with that of 1897 or 1900 if you would see the contrast in his buying power now and his buying power of a quarter of a century ago.

That Body of Yours

HEART RESERVE.

It must certainly be interesting to medical men who graduated twenty years ago, to observe the new methods of teaching medical students about the ailments of the heart.

In those days the first instrument, and often the only instrument used, was the stethoscope, which the examining physician placed over the heart, and listened to the action of the heart.

If there was a murmur, then the important thing was to find out at just what point on the chest wall it was most distinct, whether the murmur came with the first beat, the second beat, and so forth. The student's efforts were directed toward trying to locate just which valve was affected.

Then the louder the murmur the more serious was the ailment considered.

The rate of the heart was not considered so seriously at that time.

Now all this is changed. Thanks to MacKenzie and others, the big factor now is not how the heart sounds, but how well does it work. A heart may have a loud booming murmur, but if the heart is doing its work faithfully, there is no breathlessness on exertion, no swelling of the feet and so forth, then for all practical purposes this heart is just as good as a heart free from murmurs.

The rate at which the heart beats is now considered important, because the ductless glands are now thought to regulate the rate of the beats.

Other things being equal, the slow heart does its work better than a fast heart. The "reserve" of the heart is thus not being called upon to the same extent.

The size of the heart is measured by tapping the chest wall, and an outline is drawn on the chest. A better method now of course is by means of the fluoroscope. An actual tracing of the heart now may be secured in this manner. An enlarged heart, or heart that is growing large, is thus detected.

Another important point now is the rhythm or regularity. A fast irregular heart upsets the body mechanism generally. But it all gets down to the one big point. How strong is the heart muscle itself? Is it able to do its work properly despite murmurs, rapidity, irregularities and so forth?

If it is, then the most important matter is settled.

However your doctor will likely look up the cause of any disturbance and attempt to combat it. If this is not done, then your "reserve" may be lost.

WHEN in need of Printing see what we can do before you go elsewhere.

To understand why U.S. Royal Balloons are known as "the Balloon Tire Principle at its Best," consider these facts—

THE comfort you get out of balloon tires depends on how soft you can run them with safety to the tires.

U.S. Royal Balloons are built in strict accordance with the original conception of balloon tire cushioning—true low air pressure.

They can be run at pressures which actually give you the comfort you expect from a balloon tire.

They do not have to be over-inflated to save them from early, uneven and disfiguring tread wear.

This is because their flat "Low-Pressure Tread" distributes the weight over a greater tread area than the ordinary round tread.

The entire surface of the tread comes in contact with the road.

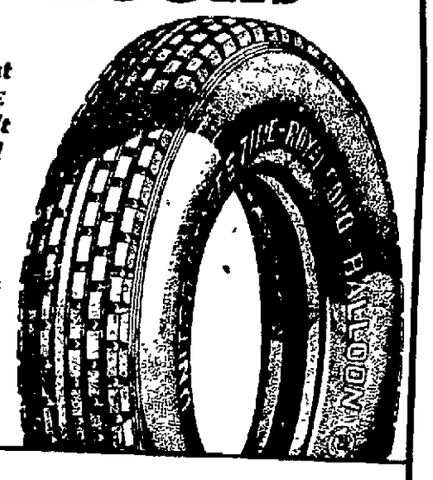

The tire itself is built of the famous Latex-treated Web Cord, which gives the maximum strength and maximum flexibility so essential to balloon cushioning.

Put U.S. Royal Balloons on your car and enjoy the comfort of riding on genuine low air pressure.

Hobbies of the Great and the Near Great

Being a Series of Intimate Glimpses Into the Fads and Foibles of Well-Known Figures in National Life.

This is the eighth of a series of intimate sketches which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plow, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

JOHN G. SARGENT.

The granite hills of Vermont have sent a new champion to Washington in the person of John Garibaldi Sargent, Attorney General of the United States.

Almost coincident with his taking office Sargent was crowned king of hobbyists in the Coolidge administration. His brief contact with newspapermen in the hectic days following the senate upheaval over an attorney generalship revealed the fact that Sargent had more hobbies than any other man in the capital's official life.

The new attorney general is a collector of pipes, a collector of clocks, an epicurean, a skilled fisherman, an amateur gardener, a prominent camper, a campfire cook, an apple fancier and a "first-aid" physician. All this, aside from being a lawyer and the attorney general. This list, too, is incomplete, as the first batch of Sargent hobbies floored his audience, and the newspapermen didn't ask for more.

In his pipe collection, Sargent has meerschaums, briarwoods, corncobs, clayst ems, but no Dawes pipes. Some of the pipes are old, sort of hand-me-downs, with a bit of history attached. His clock collection is the same. A grandfather's clock, famous for having kept time in Revolutionary days, vies with a Seth Thomas for honors.

Collects Antiques.

His taste for things revered by history has led the attorney general into collecting antiques, and his home in Vermont is filled with choice bric-a-brac from other periods. This fad is one of his delights, and a visitor to the Sargent home is regaled with the stories attached to each antique.

As an epicureau, Sargent has won many table honors. He is said to have the most prodigious appetite ever to leave Vermont. In this respect he differs greatly from the other Vermonter famous in Washington society—the president of the United States—who partakes but lightly and seldom varies his menu.

The Attorney-General takes recreation in long fishing jaunts. Sargent loves to pack his tent, camp out in some solitary wilderness, fish all day long, cook his own meals over a wood fire and then sleep in the open.

Sargent spent his youth on a farm and can still take his place in the fields and, due chiefly to his great frame, hold the pace with the best of farm hands.

Became Tinsmith.

In this connection, he learned early tricks of a tinsmith, and repair work of that sort was turned over to the future Attorney-General. He can still wield the tinshears and the soldering iron.

A garden also attracts the Attorney-General. He loves to putter among flowers and rose bushes and maintains his own little rose garden at his Vermont home. There, too, he keeps an apple orchard, and his taste of late has turned to raising various brands, with such success as to win him the reputation of being an apple-fancier.

Plays Doctor.

Sargent has considerable medical knowledge and can administer relief in all "first aid" cases. He carries a small medical kit in his briefcase and takes delight in using it whenever the opportunity offers. He has played "doctor" a good many times around his law office and since his entry to the Department of Justice.

Sargent has a "gift of the tongue," for he likes to debate with his friends.

His first conversation with newspapermen illustrated this.

"If you've got anything on your minds, speak up," he told them. "I'll argue it out with you."

And they do, and he does.

Tomorrow—Hiram W. Johnson.

Description of Boy Scout Camp

The "Chief" told me to draw you a picture of Camp Mikanakawa for you so here goes—

Our camp is just about 20 acres and very nearly square on the north. It is bounded by a double row of oaks and hickories, on the east by a woodland running back about 1,000 feet, 200 of which belongs to the camp, on the south by the Wallkill Valley Railroad and on the west a quarter of a mile of the Wallkill river. The camp proper is right along the banks of the river, the tents being grouped in threes, each holding three boys. This gives each set of tents a patrol of scouts. There are four of these patrols, each patrol named from some one of the great American Scouts and when competitive games are played, one of these groups plays the other as Cody's vs. Crockett's, or Carson's vs. Boone's.

There are two roads by which you can reach the camp, viz.—the state road to New Paltz turning in towards the river about a mile and a half north of New Paltz or the Springtown Road to the Wallkill Valley Railroad. This road is right across the river from the camp, however, we are about three-quarters of a mile from the state road.

Along the shore of the river there are a large variety of great trees, hickory and oak predominating. Then there is another strip of trees right through the center of the camp and on the east side of this is as level a field (about five acres square.) This is used for the athletic field and on this you will find a baseball diamond, volley ball, head ball and tennis courts as well as a quoit court, on the south end of this field is the kitchen and mess tent and right in the center of the field, the flag floats over the camp on a fifty foot oak pole erected by the scouts.

Now I hope you will be able to picture our camp site in your mind's eye. We feel here (that is the real scouts) that before a year or so rolls around we are going to have one of the best scout camps in the country.

Now all you fellows, who claim to be scouts and want to do more than just wear the uniform start making arrangements now to attend the big "Scout Jamboree" over this weekend, Friday, July 31st, August 1st and 2nd.

You arrive in camp on Friday evening, sit around a big camp fire that night. On Saturday, a day of big fun and eats, anything you want, baseball, tennis or scout games and contests. The final day (Sunday) will wind up the big event with a grand fellowship meeting.

By this time you scouts have received your notice and should be sending in your application to the "Chief" here at camp.

Everybody's coming to camp on next Friday.

"I hear you sent your daughter abroad to take voice culture," remarked the nosy neighbor. "Rather expensive, isn't it?"

"Well," replied Watt A. Longbrough, "it's true that she has gone to Europe to study—but the neighbors made up the money to send her."

Correct this sentence: I am delighted to observe, says the teacher, that all the little boys and girls have clean finger nails this morning.

My Grocery.

The cash I spend in food each day
Envokes a string of words from me;
I count them over—the bills I pay—
My grocery—my grocery.

Each egg a graft—each prune a snare—
To make my life one daily grind;
I add each list unto the end, and there
My finish find.

Oh, memories of feasts long past—
My duty plain I can not doubt;
To yield each meal—and strive at last
To do without.

Summer Love.

I put the memory of you in lavender today;
It lasted such a little while and then you went away,
I wrapped the memory of you in jassamine and rue;
I wonder when I take it out—if I shall know it's you!

The "Always E-Z Corset Company" attributes its success to such a procedure:

1. Got out a form letter.
2. Created an elastic demand
3. Stayed with their dealers.
4. Hooked up with some good capitalists.
5. Covered the territory well.
6. Put forth a straight-laced proposition, having no strings attached.
7. So far their figures look pretty good.

"But I'll promise to quit going with Slippery Elm," he Pined.

"Then it's Oak with me, providing you will carry out the Ashes after we're married."

PLANTING FORESTS TO PAY FOR SCHOOLS

Clifford R. Pettis, superintendent of state forests, of the Conservation Commission, addressed 300 school teachers at the Cortland Normal school on the possibilities of school district forests. School district forests in rural localities have been started by a number of schools, the purpose of the forests being to pay in full or in part the cost of supporting the schools. Seventy-one schools thus far have planted more than 600,000 young forest trees in plantations ranging from 1,000 trees to 40,000 or more. Interest in school district forests is growing rapidly and Supt. Pettis's talk was followed with close attention by the teachers.

ACCORD.

Accord, July 27.—Charles Depuy ran a pitch fork through his hand while loading hay on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Turner returned home last week after spending a few days with relatives at Port Jervis.

B. L. Currie, superintendent of the local creamery, is taking a few days' vacation.

Why Eat and Eat and Eat and Still Stay Skinny?

If you wonder why you remain skinny and lacking in energy even though you eat a lot, just try taking BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON TABLETS three or four times a day. They supply in highly concentrated form the health-giving body-building vitamines which escape in the cooking of most modern foods and which science says you must have in order to be well and strong and in perfect physical condition.

In this way the body gets the utmost in nourishment from the food you eat—the appetite is stimulated and the digestion aided. Increased energy and nerve-strength follow. The tissue being properly nourished, are filled out. The face and figure round into more perfect form and proportion. The blood racing with life and vigor gives a healthy color and radiance.

With plenty of firm, solid flesh on your bones you can look like the vigorous appearing man in the picture. The food you eat will do you good—you can see for yourself that it is giving you renewed vigor and increased power of endurance. You will not continue to appear skinny and undernourished.

This new scientific method of presenting the body building elements of Cod Liver Oil in tablet form makes it possible for thousands to get the benefit of this great tonic who never before have been able to take it because of its nauseous fishy taste. Now all this has been changed and Cod Liver Oil has been combined with Iron and other health building ingredients to form the quickest weight builder and strengthener known in all medicines.

Just one concentrated tablet of BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON taken four times a day with meals will bring amazing increase in your bodily vigor and marked changes for the better in your appearance. These improvements will be noticeable in a very short time—in most cases within a few days. This condition of better health and greater strength will not leave you—it will be permanent and lasting as you continue this wonderful vitamine treatment.

Prestige & Profit

Goods advertised in newspapers are superior to non advertised goods!

This is the conclusion of a Better Business Bureau that has been checking up newspaper advertising in an Eastern city.

Careful comparisons were made of advertised goods and similar lines that were not advertised.

In 95% of the cases, the Better Business Bureau reports, the advertised articles were superior in quality to the non-advertised articles.

Good news for newspaper readers—of course, but most of them know it by experience.

How about the national advertiser who is seeking that elusive thing called "prestige"?

A manufacturer's brands are in the best company when they are in the advertising columns of the daily newspaper.

And since newspaper advertising sells goods, newspaper advertisers combine prestige with profit.

Charlie Hartnett of Chicago Cubs Is Great Catcher

Charlie Hartnett, first string catcher for the Chicago Cubs, is rated as one of the greatest catchers in the National league, not only for his fire and skill, but for his hard hitting. J. B. Sheridan, the veteran St. Louis baseball writer, refers to him as the reincarnation of "King" Kelly.

Schillings Lost To West Shore

The West Shore Railroad team swamped the Schilling Furniture team at the Athletic Field Monday night in a battle that the railroaders had no difficulty in taking; score 11 to 4. The winners secured a lead early in the contest and remained in front throughout the whole game. Connelly and Bush both puzzled their opponents with their benders for Bush fooled 13 of the furniture makers while Connelly had 10 victims to his credit through the strikeout process.

This evening at the Athletic Field the Kingston Gas team will play The Freeman.

Artistic Park In Los Angeles

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, July 28.—Baseball de luxe!

Los Angeles will have it after September 15, when the new $1,100,000 home of the Los Angeles Club, of the Pacific Coast League, owned by William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago and Los Angeles, is completed.

The new park is said to be the most artistic in the United States. The grandstand and bleachers, seating 30,000, are entirely of steel and concrete. The diamond is genuine turtle back. The left and right field walls of brick are 340 feet from the home plate and the center field fence is 411 feet from the pan.

Under present plans the new park will be used by the Vernon Club, Los Angeles' second home team. Two club houses, as well as a house for the visiting club, will be located under the grandstand.

Bar Signs.

A feature of the new park will be the barring of all advertising signs.

Wrigley has taken a stand that not a single advertisement of any kind will be permitted to mar the beauty of the structure.

Wally Hood, leading hitter of the Los Angeles Club, was said to have induced Wrigley to bar signs in the park, claiming that they interfere with the batting eyes of players. In some parks on the coast circuit, according to Hood, advertising signs are so numerous that many come directly in a line with pitched balls, making it impossible to get a "bead" on the sphere.

The signs also interfere with fast fielding of hot line drives and low flies, it is claimed by Hood.

Tower for Scribes.

At the entrance to the new baseball home will be a tower, nine stories high. J. H. Patrick, president of the Los Angeles Club, will have a floor of the tower for his use and newspaper men have been assigned quarters on the fifth floor.

Whether the new park will be used this season for more than a formal opening and several exhibition games will depend on whether Los Angeles or Vernon wins the pennant in the Coast race.

Should either club cop the honors the post-season series planned with the winner of the American Association pennant and the leaders in the International League will be played in the Los Angeles park.

Present plans call for a post-series in the east between the American Association and International leaders, the winner of that series to journey to California to meet the Pacific Coast champions.

Because of the warm weather prevailing here, in the winter the series could be played either in October or November without fear of cold or rain.

Braves Strongest Against Leaders

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 28.—Not in many years has the National League had a ball club quite the same as the Boston Braves—tailenders and yet feared by all. The 1925 Braves are like a rattler's grandfather, mostly inert but always poisonous.

They have been called the Giants' freshman team because of the more than sympathetic relationship existing between the business offices of the two clubs. On the battlefield they are a trifle less sympathetic than a couple of scorpions. The mid-July record showed the Braves, a last-place proposition, winning a majority of games from the Giants, at that time less than a game outside the league leadership.

Stopped Giants.

Had the Braves played second-division baseball in these games, the Giants would have been out in front by a comfortable margin.

However, the business works two ways, since the Pirates and the Dodgers, the remaining contenders, also found the Boston Bean a slightly indigestible morsel. In thirty-eight games played against the three leaders, the Braves had won nineteen and lost an equal number, a surprising record in view of the fact that they had won only fifteen games and lost thirty-one against the rest of the field. The Phillies, for example, won twelve of the first fifteen games played with the Braves.

The Braves, in short, are most uncertain and, therefore, doubly dangerous. They started Bob Smith, a utility infielder, in the box against the Pirates recently, and he beat them in eleven innings. That was a typical example of Boston precocity. Up in that locality, when the worm turns it bites.

Potential Strength.

The writer is not so certain that the Braves are a typical last-place outfit, anyhow. Dave Bancroft really has uncovered a very promising hand for his two seasons in the managerial stakes and, given a little more punch in the batting order, would start going somewhere without delay.

He has transformed the club from the weakest in point of defense to one of the soundest. Benton Barnes, Genewich and Cooney have developed into an adequate pitching staff, and the holes in the porous plaser infield having been filled by Marriott and Burrus.

Harris and Welsh, two new outfielders, also have contributed their bit to the general efficiency of the club. It could do with more hitting and a new second baseman. If and when it gets either or both, the Braves are likely to desert the cellar for good.

BOXING BOUTS AT MONTICELLO FRIDAY

The Boxing Club at Monticello Park has secured a stellar bout for their card Friday evening, July 31. Willie Dillon, the lightweight champion of Cuba, and Sid Marks, the conqueror of Lew Tendler, and Murray Elkins.

These two boxers have been hurling charge and counter charge against each other, bitterly accusing their opponents of being afraid to sign an greement, and both are confident of winning via the K. O. route.

Matchmaker Gold, after a little persuasion, signed them up for an official 8 round contest.

Among the others on the card are Joe Young of New York and Buck Spratley of Red Bank; Benny Nabors of New York and Clyde Jones of Troy; San Sanches of South America and Tony Iris of Newburgh, who is a comer.

In the semi-finals, Al Valdo of New York will go six rounds with Jimmy Laduca, the latest product of that home of boxers—Newark, N. J.

The opener will find Le Roy Johnson of Livingston Manor, a new comer to the professional fields, and a stable mate of Babe Herman's in a four round bout with Young Rorke, of the East Side.

Matchmaker Gold has also secured some of the best known boxers to augment the regular card with a series of exhibitions. Chief amongst them are: Charles Phil Rosenberg, the world's bantamweight champion; Sid Terris, the logical lightweight contender; Babe Herman, the logical featherweight contender; and K. O. Phil Kaplan, the boy with the wicked left hook.

The bouts are scheduled for 9 o'clock, new time, at the arena in Monticello Park. In case of rain, they will take place the following night.

EVERETT SCOTT'S FIELDING RECORD

Led Shortstops of American League for Eight Consecutive Seasons.

Everett Scott, shortstop recently released by the New York Americans to the Washington champions, who holds the record for playing consecutive games, also holds the best average in fielding his position, a fact which has been overshadowed by his marathon run of playing continuously for 1,307 games.

Scott was born in Indiana, the state in which Amos Rusie, Sam Thompson, Donie Bush, Cy Williams, Ed Roush, Sam Rice, George Dauss and several other notable ball players were reared. Bluffton is the spot where Scott first announced to the world that he had arrived. This event took place about thirty-three years ago.

Kokomo, Ind., is the town where Scott began his remarkable career as a long-distance shortstop. This was years and years ago, for young as Scott is, he is a campaigner of 16 summers, which is a long time for a ball player to draw cheers, jeers and a salary. And speaking of salary, Scott has garnered considerable cash out of the pastime. Besides the regular checks he drew for 16 seasons, he came in for his share of the prize money from five world series.

After two seasons of rehearsing in the Apple Orchard circuits, Scott was signed by the Youngstown club in 1911. The management of that club may have discovered Scott in 1910, but he didn't get into the records of that circuit until 1911 and 1912. During those seasons the "pride of Bluffton" played so brilliantly for Youngstown that he was singled out by big league scouts as an unusually bright prospect.

It was the Boston Americans that landed this prize. Scott was sent to the St. Paul club of the American association for more seasoning. St. Paul played 167 games in 1913, and Scott played 167 games for St. Paul, which goes to show that he always was ready and reliable, never missing work, play or meals.

From the first game he played in organized ball Scott never filled any other position than that of shortstop. He led the shortstops of the American league eight consecutive seasons or from 1916 until 1923, inclusive. In only three seasons has Scott missed the honor of heading the list in his position, never sinking lower than third place. In 1924 Topper Rigney, of the Tigers, beat him out of first place by one point.

Art Tillie Shaffer, one of the greatest third-sackers in the game when he was a member of the New York Giants, is again returning to the diamond. Shaffer is manager of the Hollywood baseball club and holds down the hot corner for the movie city outfit.

All Good Furniture Polishers Use Hands

The kid brother of a major league recruit was very proud of big brother and lost no opportunity to tell his acquaintances that Brother Bill was now a big league player. Bill happened to be present on one of these occasions and disgustedly exclaimed: "Big league ball player! Huh! All I am is a furniture polisher. I never get any chance to play ball."

Bill's father, hearing the remark, corrected his son, saying: "Well, I dunno, Bill; mebbe you are a furniture polisher, but all the good furniture polishers I know do their job with their hands."

Hutchison Never Has Won an Open Crown

Jock Hutchison, veteran golfer, has yet to win the American open title. And this despite the fact that he has been a regular competitor for years.

"The Hutch" came closest to the coveted goal in 1916 and 1920. The first-named year he finished second to Chick Evans, two strokes in the rear. It took a record 286 to beat Jock, however.

Four seasons later, Hutchison tied with Vardon, Diegel and Burke for the runner-up position at Inverness, one swish behind the winner, Ted Ray.

Rainstorms Come by Day

It is a curious fact, but scientists seem agreed that four out of five hailstorms occur in the day time and those during the day are usually the most intense and damaging. This fact is true irrespective of the sections of the country in which such storms are studied.

PLAN FOR SAFETY IN COMMUNITIES

Organize to Cut Down Annual Toll of Deaths and Accidents.

By C. B. AUGL, President, National Safety Council.

Chicago.—Every community contributes its quota to the yearly total of 85,000 accident fatalities and the toll continues to increase year by year. Twenty thousand of the victims are children. Twenty thousand men, women and children are killed in automobile accidents in a year. Twenty thousand more meet death by accident in their homes. The injured and crippled run into the millions each year. These are facts, the significance of which is more poignant when it is realized that at least 75 per cent of all accidents are avoidable.

Aware of Menace.

Communities, fast becoming aware of the menace of the avoidable accident, are organizing themselves into effective associations known as community safety councils to work for the prevention of accidents. There are now over 60 cities in this country with active councils studying accident hazards, solving safety problems and spreading accident prevention information and education into factories, homes and schools.

The public safety activities of the community safety councils include safety instruction in public and parochial schools (it is estimated that more than 2,500,000 children are now receiving safety education as part of their school work); organization of highway safety committees; the placing of bulletin boards and the posting of public safety bulletins; the elimination of traffic hazards; law enforcement; conducting schools for automobile drivers; fire prevention; home safety; children's activities; safety drivers' clubs; water life saving and others.

By schools for safety supervisors; first-aid courses; fire-prevention courses; mass meetings for workmen; meetings for managers and executives; organization of plant-safety committees; plant visits and inspection and other means, the community safety council has become a vehicle for accident prevention work in the industrial plants of the community.

Cut Down Toll.

Among the cities showing a reduction in 1924, through the efforts of community safety councils, were the following:

	1923	1924
Baltimore	103	90
Louisville	63	45
Rochester	33	21
Memphis (county)	45	25
Chattanooga	30	16
Cleveland	185	163
Cincinnati (county)	157	102
Battle Creek	22	16
Syracuse	30	22
Denver	41	39
Newark	104	101
Portland, Ore. (county)	32	29
Tulsa	30	27
Erie	23	15
St. Paul	55	52
Ft. Wayne	19	13
Beloit	3	0

In Grand Rapids, Atlanta, Wilmington, and Boston the safety campaigns reduced accidents during the first 11 months but totals for the year have not yet been computed.

The experience of these cities has furnished a partial yet convincing demonstration of what can be done when the whole community is organized to combat the waste of human life through preventable accidents.

Rode for Mile on Back of Whale, Says H. A. Snow

New York.—Having ridden a mile on a whale's back, H. A. Snow, naturalist and explorer, has returned to New York from the Arctic. He has motion pictures to prove his feat. Also he, in the name of the United States, has posted a proclamation of annexation on Herald island, 30 square miles of barren rock. He has a photograph of Old Glory floating over the snow against a background of rocky cliffs.

While in a small boat making pictures of a whale they had just harpooned Snow and several companions suddenly found the boat themselves still in it, lifted out of the water and pitching this way and that. A tail slapped the water behind them and fins stuck out in front of them. It was the harpooned whale's mate or its baby. The keel of the boat was square on the whale's back. Occasionally, as the boat was borne toward the harpooned whale, the pursuing leviathan dived and the boat settled into the water, but it soon was lifted out again.

Snow said that he would not take the island as a gift, but that the United States was welcome to it. He found bones of explorers who died there. Gazetteers say that island was discovered in 1849 by an Englishman.

Bryan's Unspoken Speech

purposes than a finite mind can know, and yet some are so wedded to evolution that they deny that God would perform a miracle merely because a miracle is inconsistent with evolution.

"If we believe that God can perform a miracle and might desire to do so, we are prepared to consider with open mind the third question, namely:

"Did God perform the miracles that are recorded in the Bible? The same evidence that establishes the authority of the Bible establishes the truth of the record of miracles performed.

"Do these evolutionists stop to think of the crime they commit when they take faith out of the hearts of men and women and lead them out into a dark night? What pleasure can they find in robbing any human being of the 'hallowed glory of that creed' and in substituting 'the lonely mystery of existence' as he found it? Can the fathers and mothers of Tennessee be blamed for trying to protect their children from such a tragedy?

Compares Evolution to Poison.

"The bodies of our people are so valuable that druggists and physicians must be careful to properly label all poisons; why not be as careful to protect the spiritual life of our people from the poisons that kill the soul?

Slayer Example of Evolutionist.

"Do bad doctrines corrupt the morals of students?

"We have a case in point. Mr. Darrow was engaged about a year ago in defending two rich men's sons who were on trial for as dastardly a murder as was ever committed. The older one, "Babe" Leopold, was a brilliant student, 19 years old. He was an evolutionist and atheist. He was a follower of a Nietzsche, whose books he had devoured and whose philosophy he had adopted. Mr. Darrow made a plea for him, based upon the influence that Nietzsche's philosophy had exerted upon the boy's mind.

"Psychologists who build the evolutionary hypothesis teach that man is nothing but a bundle of characteristics inherited from brute ancestors.

"This is the quintessence of evolution, distilled for us by one who follows that doctrine to its logical conclusion. Analyze this dogma of darkness and death. Evolutionists say that back in the twilight of life, a beast, name and nature unknown, planted a murderous seed and that the impulse that originated in that seed throbs forever in the blood of the brute's descendants; inspiring killings innumerable, for which the murderers are not responsible because coerced by a fate fixed by the laws of heredity. It is an insult to reason and shocks the heart. That doctrine is as deadly as leprosy; it may aid a lawyer in a criminal case, but it would, if generally adopted, destroy all sense of responsibility and menace the morals of the world.

Most Important of Sciences.

"Our third indictment against evolution is that it diverts attention from pressing problems of great importance to trifling speculation. While one evolutionist is trying to imagine what happened in the dim past, another is trying to pry open the door of the distant future. One recently grew eloquent over ancient worms, and another predicted that seventy-five thousand years hence every one will be bald and toothless. The science of 'how to live' is the most important of all the sciences. It is desirable to know the physical sciences. But they should not lose sight of the rock of ages while they study the age of rocks; neither should they become so absorbed in measuring the distance between the stars that they will forget Him who holds the stars in his hand.

"Our fourth indictment against the evolutionary hypothesis is that, by paralyzing the hope of reform, it discourages those who labor for the improvement of man's condition. Every upward looking man or woman seeks to lift the level upon which mankind stands, and they trust that they will see beneficent changes during the brief span of their own lives. Evolution chills their enthusiasm substituting aeons for years.

Science Eliminates Love.

"Our fifth indictment of the evolutionary hypothesis is that, if taken seriously and made the basis of a philosophy of life, it would eliminate love and carry man back to a struggle of tooth and claw. The Christians who have allowed themselves to be deceived into believing that evolution is a beneficent, or even a rational process, have been associating with those who either do not understand its implications or dare not avow their knowledge of these implications.

"Can any Christian remain indifferent? Science needs religion to direct energies and to inspire with lofty purpose those who employ the forces that are unloosed by science. Evolution is at war with religion because religion is supernatural.

Not Teacher of Morals.

"Let us, then, hear the conclusion of the whole matter. Science is a magnificent material force, but it is not a teacher of morals. It can perfect machinery, but it adds no moral restraints to protect society from the misuse of the machine. It can also build gigantic intellectual ships, but it constructs no moral rudders for the control of storm tossed human vessels. It not only fails to supply the spiritual element needed, but some of its unproven hypothesis rob the ship of its compass and thus endanger its course.

Rebs Christ of Glory.

"The world needs a saviour more than it ever did before, and there is only one name under Heaven gi among men whereby we must saved.' It is this name that evo tion degrades, for, carried to logical conclusion, it robs Christ the glory of a virgin birth, of t majesty of his deity and mission, a of the triumph of his resurrecti It also disputes the doctrine of t atonement.

"Again force and love meet fa to face, and the question, 'What sh I do with Jesus?' must be answere A bloody, brutal doctrine, evoluti demands, as the rabble did ninete hundred years ago, that He crucified. That cannot be the answ of this jury representing a Christi state and sworn to uphold the la of Tennessee.

"Your answer will be hea throughout the world; it is eager awaited by a praying multitude. the law is nullified, there will be r joicing wherever God is repudiate the Saviour scoffed at, and the Bib ridiculed. Every unbeliever of ever kind and degree will be happy. I on the other hand, the law is uphel and the religion of the school chi dren protected, millions of Christian will call you blessed."

DECIDE QUICKLY.

The where-to-go question n be pleasingly settled if you read our Summer Boarder umns.

Yanks Must Get A New Club

Reconstruction of Huggins's Team Absolutely Necessary—Good Trading Material in Hoyt, Jones, Ward and Meusel.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 28.—Having ridden the crest for four years and now in the grip of the undertow, the New York Yanks today faced the alternative of getting a new manager or an new ball club. It quite probably will be the latter, since Jake Ruppert, the well known check writer, has declared with convincing heat that he is perfectly satisfied with Miller Huggins as a team leader.

Huggins, therefore, will stay and the prima donnas go. They are altogether irreconcilable and another season without a change of some kind would wreck what is left of a once proud ball club.

The writer is not prepared to say that this is Huggins's fault. He was good enough to lead the club to a pennant for three seasons and to second money last year. But the young men have not taken kindly to a second division berth and, of course, are altogether blameless themselves.

Backstairs gossip from those close to the management and players has had the Yanks indulging in mutual recriminations and, in some cases, showing actual disrespect for their manager.

Ruppert has had direct evidence this season of what the situation can and does produce. Huggins, of course, allowed the club to grow old on his hands, yet the Yanks are no seventh place outfit, bad as they are. They simply have their heads down and are merely finishing out their string. To listen to some of the fans, you would think the string should be a rope with a noose on one end and the limb of a tree on the other.

The identity of those to be guillotined can only be surmised. However, the club has plenty of good trading material in Jones and Hoyt, pitchers; Ward, second baseman, and Meusel, outfielder, and something is certain to be done about it before 1926. Ruth, of course, is immune for more than one reason.

For one thing, no club would care to assume his big contract in the present stage of his rather precarious health. For another, Ruth is a New York institution and will so remain until proved otherwise. It also may be assumed that Dugan and Combs are safe simply because you can't reconstruct the Woolworth building with a shoe box for a corner stone.

Two New Clubs in Golf Association

Hudson and Peekskill Clubs Become Members of Hudson River Golf Association—Eight Clubs Now in Association.

The Hudson River Golf Association, composed of six clubs in the Central Hudson Valley, has opened its doors and two new members have been taken into the fold. The new members are the Hollow Brook Country Club of Peekskill and the Hudson Golf and Country Club of Hudson.

The new comers have nine hole courses and some of the best players in the valley hold memberships. Peekskill, especially will have two worthy contenders for the valley championship when they are brought out next season, in Frank Wasselis, Jr., and William J. Donovan. These players are considereddd top notchers in their class in the down river city.

Because of the recent fire in the Twaalfskill Club, the Colonial city members do not feel that they will be able to entertain with a day-at-golf this season, and their date has been awarded to the Peekskill Club. This event will be held September 12.

It has not yet been determined by the Twaalfskill Club whether the old club house will be rebuilt or whether a new site will be selected, and an 18 hole course with new club house erected. Kingston, however, will retain its membership in the golf association and plans to send teams for the remainder of events this year.

Tagging Major League Bases

Jack Quinn, baseball's patriarch, faced the Red Sox for the first time since his recent release and all but shut his former playmates right out, 2 to 1, the Athletics making a clean up of the series. It was the Macks' fifteenth victory in their last nineteen starts.

The Dodgers left New York in third place but reached Chicago in fourth owing to the fact that the Reds twice beat the Cardinals, 4 to 2 and 3 to 0.

Harris's homer staked the Braves to a one run lead in the tenth but the pernicious Pirates would not stay put, passes to Moore, Traynor and Wright and Cuyler's double winning the ball game six to five in the last half of the inning. The victory gave the Pirates a 1½ game lead over the Giants.

BLUE SOX STATE THEY WERE NOT FAVORED

Editor, The Freeman:

Could you kindly oblige the Blue Sox and put this little article in your valuable paper in regards to the Blue Sox-Saugerties Road All Stars game. We were in no way favored by the umpire. It was a close play and from where the umpire was he was out as far as he could judge. But as far as cheating them that's not in our line. We defeated them three times already and we think we can do it again. We will play them again on a neutral diamond and they can bring their own umpire.

JOE SCHULTZ.
Manager, Blue Sox.

CHAMPS WIN AGAIN FROM UNION STREET

The Champs baseball team met and defeated the Union Street nine in the second game of the series between these teams.

G. Gerber pitched pitched good ball for the Champs, but his support was not good at times.

The feature of the game was a two base hit by G. Gerber with three on in the ninth inning.

This is the second game the Champs won from the Union Street team.

MRS. CROKER IS A HORSE BREEDER

Continues to Operate Farm of Late Husband Near Dublin, Ireland.

Mrs. Richard Croker, Cherokee wife of the former boss of Tammany Hall, now deceased, continues to operate the 554-acre farm of her husband, near Dublin, Ireland, where she is engaged mostly in the breeding of fine horses.

While visiting friends in Washington, Mrs. Croker, with her mother, Mrs. M. S. Edmondson of Florida, occupied one of the palatial suites at the Mayflower hotel, where she discussed freely her ideas of women and their work.

"When I was in the Cherokee school at Tahlequah, Okla," she said, "I had a four-years' course in agriculture, a very thorough course. I wondered at that time how it would fit into my life, but I have found since that it was a very good thing.

"I am a farmer in Ireland, purely an American, and as such I have not mixed in Irish politics, remaining strictly neutral. There is some poverty in Ireland, but it is not general, and has been grossly exaggerated. While I am interested in helping the country, I believe the best way I can help is by keeping my farm going.

Mrs. Richard Croker.

"I have 554 acres and a stable of horses, and employ about forty men working on the place. I feel I can help best in a domestic way and consider that my place is on the farm, and that I can help by keeping those men working. During the war it was a hard struggle to meet the heavy pay roll, but we carried on.

"I breed racing horses and still have Mr. Croker's stables and original stock. It was his wish that the farm be kept intact. While I have disposed of the progeny, I have retained the stables and have 11 of the grandsons of Orby, winner of the English Epsom Derby in 1907, and they are racing now. I am thinking seriously of bringing some horses to America next winter to race at Miami, Fla.

"I am just now a plain, ordinary citizen, a typical farmer, and I believe in the home. I am not even a suffragette. That may be a little old-fashioned, but I believe in women being the queen in the home, and sticking to the fireside. A woman renders her greatest service as a citizen in the home, where there is plenty to do."

Bone Play Was Undoing of Smart Young Catcher

Frank Bancroft, late business manager of the Cincinnati Reds, while manager of the famous Providence Grays, was experimenting with a young catcher of no mean ability. While catching a game one day, the score a tie in the twelfth inning, the young catcher ran far back into the right of the grand stand and made a phenomenal catch of a foul fly. The audience naturally appreciating the catch, began to applaud and shout for the young man. He at once turned to the stand, and removing his mask and glove, made several elaborate bows in appreciation of their plaudits.

In the meantime, the man on third base, seeing him bowing and scraping to the audience, broke for home and won the game.

On returning to the clubhouse after the game, Bancroft gave the young catcher a tongue lashing for noticing the audience and letting the man score. The young fellow, nervous and excited, admitted to Bancroft he was a "little off" in the play.

"Yes, and you'll be a d—d sight further off tomorrow!"

The catcher left the club that night.

Barnyard Golf for Women Over Forty

Women more than forty years of age who wish to become athletic should begin by pitching horseshoes, Miss Charlotte Stewart, head of the physical training department of the Salt Lake City high school, said addressing the women's division of the National Amateur Athletic federation at Los Angeles.

Miss Stewart also recommended a judicious amount of croquet, putting on the green, and finally volley ball, as the second stage of exercises for women beginners of middle age.

Postal Employes Play and Dine

Kingston Post Office Nine Defeated Newburgh Mail Handlers 9 to 6—Banquet at Golden Rule Is Greatly Enjoyed.

The Kingston Post Office baseball team demonstrated its supremacy over the employes of the Newburgh Post Office Monday afternoon, at the Fair Grounds, winning by a 9 to 6 tally. Following the baseball game a banquet was enjoyed at Golden Rule Inn.

The local employes got off to an early lead when they scored five runs in the first inning. That the visiting mail handlers meant business was evidenced when in their two opening frames they scored five runs. While one run was being rung up for Newburgh in the remaining innings, the local postal team put across four.

The battery for the Kingston nine was Robins and Newkirk, for the losers Coleman and Oakley.

Following the baseball game the ball players, members of both office staffs and invited guests enjoyed a banquet at Golden Rule Inn. There were ninety-nine present at the feast and all expressed great praise for the delicious menu, which was faultlessly served.

During the evening Zucca's singing orchestra rendered the music and solos were sung by the talented members of both offices. Bill Gronemeyer led the Kingston members in singing. Vaudeville was also enjoyed following the banquet. The headliner on the bill was King Benjamin, the strong man of Newburgh.

It is expected that in the very near future the Newburgh force will be given an opportunity to avenge the defeat here in a return game.

Among those present were Postmaster Walter P. Crane of this city, Postmaster Brundage and Assistant Postmaster Cathcart of Newburgh. The following was the menu.

Woodchuck Was Burned Alive

Saugerties Resident Sentenced to Albany Penitentiary for Sixty Days for Using That Method of Killing Pest.

The woodchuck pest among the farmers of Ulster and other counties has made it necessary to adopt strenuous methods of ridding their sections of the 'chucks, and state officials have recommended and demonstrated an effective and humane method by the use of gas.

A more strenuous and less humane method was employed by one Saugerties resident, with disastrous results, according to the Saugerties Post, which says:

Adolph Galleja was sentenced to sixty days in the Albany penitentiary by Police Justice Gardner this morning and Officer Lavelle took the Spanish gent to the "pen." Galleja was arrested on Sunday, charged with cruelty to animals, on complaint of William Lasher of Quarryville. It was alleged that Galleja, who is employed on the Saugerties-Palenville road construction, had caught a woodchuck and then tying it to a pole, poured oil on the animal and set it afire and permitted the animal to burn. This act of cruelty aroused Lasher and he immediately notified the police and Galleja's arrest and conviction followed. He no doubt realizes now that it was a serious matter to commit such a brutal act on American soil.

Inspect Forest Planting Stock.

The nurserymen of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters will visit the Conservation Commission's nursery at Saratoga Springs on August 5 to inspect the work that New York state is doing in growing forest planting stock. The Saratoga nursery now contains more than 50,000 young forest trees and is the largest nursery of the kind in the country.
